

NOT ON THE PROGRAMME.
A SATURDAY NIGHT BATHING SCENE.

It is not exactly right to laugh at our fellows' misfortunes, and yet, like the wag who saw another squirming under the pangs of a jumping toothache, the thing was so ludicrously comical that we had to laugh or bust. A party of jolly chaps, in order to cool off after the sweltering heat of Saturday afternoon, hied to the Monongahela River, just above the Smithfield street bridge, for an old-fashioned bath and swim. They went divested of all superfluous gear, and at once plunged into the inviting waters. The pioneer of the party yelled out, "My God, Frank but the bottom is muddy and sticky!" But in the depth would permit, one unfortunate wight, who was as hairy as Esau, stooping down and grasping handfuls of the bottom deposits and rubbing it over his body.

The discovery was soon made that the material was coal tar, the refuse of the gas works, that had been dumped there to be got rid of. The whole party were black as Africans in certain spots, and their feet were thoroughly encased in the adhesive material. Bathing was soon brought to an end, and as their bodies were so coated as to preclude the possibility of donning their garments, they took up their line of march for the Merchants' Hotel, with not even the dignity of a Georgia summer costume—a shirt collar and a pair of spurs. Fortunately at that hour there were no "peeping Johns" or prying members of the Sorosis, to impede their sorrowful pace, and with their crumpled linen and "outside duds" in hand, they made rapid time.

Arrived at the "Merchants'" a tub of water was speedily provided in the saloon, and, with a firkin of lard and box of soap, the scrubbing process commenced. The tarry substance was tenacious; and as the victims greased and scrubbed, washed and swore, the scene, as witnessed by an outsider, was one to make even a dog split his sides with laughter, and would have furnished to a Hogarth or Cruikshank material for one of the most ridiculous sketches that ever employed their graphic and ready pencils. The next morning the whole party were as melancholy as if they had just witnessed the destruction of a still-house—sore from rubbing, and whether at table to enjoy the ordinary repast, or the benefit of the cooling breeze, visions of the past night would rise up before them, and they emphatically declared that the odor of tar was in everything around them.

"We deal not now with the industrial or economic view of the question, but with the far broader and grander one of its high political aspects. Let us not by any means hinder or prohibit the voluntary coming to this country of all men who choose to add their labor, their energies and their industry in aid of our own. No one ever complained of the negro who came here of his own free will. From his so coming arose neither wrong nor danger to freedom or the perpetuity of free institutions; but the negro, brought here as a commercial speculation, wrought the so great difficulties from which the country has so suffered."

The above is from the master-brain of Ben Butler. Does the Oregonian endorse the doctrine? and if it does what will it say about the right of the Chinamen to become citizens? Will it not admit that if those people come here for the purposes named by Butler in the above extract, they ought to be made citizens for the purpose of protection to both person and property, and if so will it still contend for the political heresy, that by virtue of their becoming citizens the ballot ought to pass into their hands? Side by side stands Butler and Morton. The former says: "Let us not hinder by any means the voluntary coming to this country of all men who choose to identify themselves with us." The latter says: "Universal citizenship," and the Oregonian says, "that all citizens should have the ballot," and Williams says, "put the ballot in the hands of these ignorant hordes, and our party, yea—our country is gone. What harmony! Gentlemen, as you have progressed so rapidly, would it not be wise to stop and consult?"

MAKING A FORTUNE.

Samuel McFadden was a watchman in a bank. He was poor, but honest, and his life was without reproach. The trouble with him was that he felt that he was not appreciated. His salary was only $4 a week, and when he asked to have it raised, the President, the Cashier, and the Board of Directors gazed at him through their spectacles, and frowned on him told him to go out and stop his insolence, when he knew business was dull and the bank could not meet its expenses now, let alone lavish one dollar a week more upon such a miserable worm as Samuel McFadden. And then Saml. McFadden felt depressed and sad, and the haughty scorn of the President and Cashier cut him to the soul. He would often go into the side yard and bow his venerable twenty-four inch head and weep gallons and gallons of tears over his insignificance, and pray that he might be made worthy of the Cashier and the President's polite attention.

One night a happy thought struck him; a gleam of light burst upon his soul, and gazing down the dim vista of years with his eyes all blind with joyous tears, he saw himself rich, honored, and respected. So Saml. McFadden fooled around and got a Jimmy, a monkey wrench, a cross-cut saw, a cold chisel, a drill, and about a half a ton of gun powder and nitro-glycerine, and all those things. Then in the dead of night he went to the fire proof safe, and, after working at it for a while, burst the door and brick into an immortal smash with such perfect success that there was not enough of that safe left to make a caret tack. Mr. McFadden then proceeded to load up with coupons, greenbacks, currency and specie, and to nail all the odd change that was lying anywhere, so that he pranced out of the bank with over one million dollars on him. He then retired to an unassuming residence out of town, sent word to the detectives where he was.

A detective called on him next day with a soothing note from the Cashier. McFadden treated it with lofty scorn. Detectives called on him every day with humble notes from the President, Cashier and Board of Directors. At last the bank officers got up a magnificent private supper, to which Mr. McFadden was invited. He came, and, as the bank officers bowed down in the dust before him, he pondered over the bitter past, and his soul was filled with wild exultation.

Before he drove away in his carriage that night it was all fixed that Mr. McFadden was to keep half a million of that money and to be unmolested if he returned the other half. He fulfilled his contract like an honest man, but refused, with haughty disdain, the offer of the Cashier to marry his daughter. Mac is now honored and respected. He moves in purple and fine linen and other good clothes, and enjoys himself first rate. And often now he takes his infant son on his knee and tells him of his early life, and instills holy principles into the child's mind, and shows him how, by industry and perseverance, and frugality, and nitro-glycerine, and monkey wrenches, and cross cut saws, and familiarity with the detective system, even the poor may rise to affluence and respectability.

A green academy student being required to write a composition in his recorse of study, commenced thus: "It is rather difficult and pretty near impossible to communicate to others those ideas wherof we ourselves are not possessed."

FRENCH MEDICAL OFFICE. Dr. Julien Perrault,

Dr. of Medicine of the Faculty of Paris, Graduate of the University of Queen's College, and Physician of the St. John Baptiste Society of San Francisco.

PERRAULT HAS THE PLEASURE to inform patients and others seeking confidential medical advice that he can be consulted daily at his office, Armory Hall Building, North East corner of Montgomery and Sacramento streets, San Francisco, Rooms Nos. 9, 10, 11, first floor, up stairs, entrance on either Montgomery or Sacramento streets.

Dr. PERRAULT'S studies have been almost exclusively devoted to the cure of the various forms of Nervous and Physical Debility, the result of injurious habits acquired in youth, which usually terminate in impotence and sterility, and permanently induce all the concomitants of old age. Where a secret infirmity exists, involving the happiness of a life and that of others, reason and morality dictate the necessity of its removal, for it is a fact that a premature decline of the vigor of manhood, matrimonial unhappiness, compulsory single life, etc., have their sources in causes, the germ of which is planted in early life, and the bitter fruits tasted long afterward; patients laboring under this complaint, will complain of one or more of the following symptoms: Nocturnal Emissions, Pains in the Back and Head, Weakness of Memory and Sight, Discharge from the Urethra on going to stool or make water, Intellectual Faculties are Weakened, and there is a disinclination to attend to business, or even to reading, writing or the society of friends, etc. The patient will probably complain of Dizziness, Vertigo, and that Sight and Hearing are dimpled in the face, and acting in different parts of the body. Patients suffering from this disease should apply immediately to Dr. PERRAULT, either in person or by letter, as he will guarantee a cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotence in six or eight weeks.

Patients suffering from venereal disease in any stage, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Bubo, Ulcers, Cutaneous Eruptions, etc., will be treated successfully. All Syphilitic and Mercurial Taints entirely removed from the system.

Dr. PERRAULT'S diplomas are in his office, where patients can see for themselves that they are under the care of a regularly educated practitioner. The best references given if required.

Patients suffering under chronic diseases can call and examine for themselves. We invite investigation; claim not to know everything, nor to cure everybody, but we do claim that in all cases taken under treatment we fulfill our promises. We particularly request those who have tried this boasted doctor, and that advertised physician till worn out and discouraged, to call upon us.

Low charges and quick cures. Ladies suffering from any complaint incidental to their sex, can consult the doctor, with the assurance of relief.

Female Monthly Pills.

Dr. PERRAULT is the only agent in California for Dr. Boerhaave's Female Monthly Pills. Immense sale has established their reputation as a female remedy unapproached, and far in advance of every other remedy for suppressions and irregularities, and other obstructions in females. On the receipt of five dollars, these Pills will be sent by mail or express to any part of the world, secure from curiosity or damage.

Persons at a distance can be cured at home, by addressing a letter to Dr. PERRAULT, corner of Sacramento and Montgomery streets, Rooms 10 and 11, or Box 973, P. O., San Francisco, stating the case as minutely as possible, general habits of living, occupation, etc., etc.

All communications confidential. 14-1y
